Forecast For Southwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 19 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Showery rain clearing to sunny spells.

Today:
A cloudy start for many as a couple of bands of showery rain clear eastward through the morning and early afternoon. Dry and sunny weather follows from the west. Light winds. Maximum temperature 19 deg C (66 deg F).

Tonight:
A dry night with long clear spells, especially to the west, and light winds. The chance for some patchy mist and fog forming in prone locations by dawn. Minimum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Monday:
A fine and dry day once any morning mist or fog has cleared with plenty of sunshine. Temperatures slightly higher than on Sunday. Maximum temperature 21 deg C (70 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Dry and mostly sunny Tuesday, after any morning fog has cleared. Cloudy with rain and turning slightly breezy Wednesday. Thursday generally drier but remaining cloudy.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.